THEME: "PROPAGATION OF ACUPUNCTURE FOR THE BENEFIT OF SOCIETY"

Dear Colleagues,

A warm welcome to AAICON 2026 to be held in Tirupati on 12 - 13, December, 2026.

Acupuncture is a time-tested, evidence-based therapeutic system practiced in 196 countries worldwide. Developed through centuries of clinical experience, it is widely used in the management of chronic pain and a variety of musculoskeletal, neurological, gastrointestinal, allergic, stress-related, anxiety-related, and supportive cancer-care conditions. Research suggests that acupuncture can help modulate inflammatory responses and may have a supportive role in the management of sepsis, alongside conventional medical care. Increasing evidence also supports its use in emergency and critical care settings, where it can enhance recovery and help to reduce reliance on pain medications, including opioids. Acupuncture is recognized by the World Health Organization (WHO) which encourages its integration into health services. Traditional acupuncture is also included in the Intangible Cultural Heritage list of UNESCO. As a safe, effective, and cost-efficient healthcare approach, acupuncture has the potential to improve quality of life and benefit a broader section of society.

AAICON 2026 provides a platform for practitioners, educators, researchers, and policymakers to come together and advance this vision collectively for better healthcare and a healthier society.

AAI: Acupuncture Association of India (AAI) was established in 1977 under the leadership of Dr. Bejoy Kumar Basu, a member of the historic Indian Medical Mission to China (1938–1943) and one of the pioneers of modern acupuncture in India. The Association was the first organized effort to bring together acupuncture practitioners across the country and promote the scientific development of Acupuncture in India.

Today, AAI has members from all parts of India and serves as a national platform for professional collaboration, education, and research in acupuncture. AAI is also a founder-member society of the World Federation of Acupuncture-Moxibustion Societies (WFAS), an international organization that maintains official relations with the World Health Organization (WHO).

AAI regularly organizes scientific seminars, conferences, free camps, and continuing education programs to promote high standards of acupuncture practice and quality education. The Association is committed to making acupuncture accessible to people in every corner of the country and contributing to a healthier society through safe, effective, and evidence-informed healthcare.
